

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method improving scene classification of a sequence of digital images comprising the steps of: (a) providing a sequence of images captured in temporal succession; (b) classifying each of the images individually based on 5 information contained in the image alone to generate a first image classification; and (c) imposing a pre-determined temporal context model on the sequence of images to generate a final image classification for each image in the sequence.